A spirited discussion among Messrs. Kitchin. Dies (Texas), Graham and Burke (Pennsylvania), came next. The Texas member accused Kitchin of being a free trader, which brought the retort that those Democrats who were asking protection for their sections on the plea that it was for revenue only, should come forward and admit that the Republican party had been right and the Democratic party wrong.

Mr. Kitchin said that under Cleveland's free trade policy there were shipped to the United States but 5,000,000 more feet of lumber than came in under the McKinley law.

Mr. Kitchin insisted that despite the contentions to the contrary of Mr. Humphrey of Washington, there were more orientals employed in the lumber industry in Washington state than in British Columbia, and that the wages in the latter country were about as high as in Washington.

At the night session Mr. McKinley of California advocated deliberation in removing duties from articles involving possible oriental competition.

Dr. B. N. Alsworth, the physician of Purvis, Mississippi, writes interesting details about the eyelone that devastated that section. While nothing could be learned as to the determination reached, it is understood that the house leader impressed the chief executive with the unfavorable situation regarding the tariff bill, and difficulty of getting the Republican members in line to vote for a rule which would expedite the passage of the measure.

It was conceded tonight by several Republican leaders that it would be impossible to pass a rule restricting amendments to the bill until some time next week, and then only by granting the demands made by a number of members that certain important schedules be open to amendment.

JOKER" THAT COST THE SMOKERS MILLIONS

WASHINGTON, March 30.—What is designated as a 'joker' that cost the consumers of tobacco in this country nearly $45,000,000 was found today in the existing revenue laws by Represen-tative Dawson of lows, who at once introduced a bill to correct the error by restoring tobacco packages to their original size.

Under the Dingley tariff the two-ounce packages of tobacco sell to the consumer at 5 cents each, and the four-ounce packages for 10 cents. In 1898 a war revenue tax of 6 cents a pound additional was levied. At the same time, in order to serve the consame time, in order to serve the con-venience of the trade, authorization was given for the reduction of the sizes of packages from two, three and four ounces to one and two thirds, two and a half and three and one third ounces. thus enabling the smoker to procure a 5-cent and a 10-cent package of to-bacco "at the stores."

The war revenue was repealed, but the packages of tobacco remained the same size. Since 1902 the consumer of tobacco has been paying the equivalent of war revenue tax to manufacturers.

ELKINS DECLARES HE STANDS WITH TAFT

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Meeting tonight for the first time since the attack in the senate yesterday upon the method in which the Republican members of the finance committee are considering the tariff bill, Senator Aldrich, chairman of the committee, and Senator Elkins, who led the faction making the protests, are said to have had a highly interesting discussion.

Mr. Aldrich defended vigorously the procedure in making a bill without the aid of the minority members, and it is said that he asked Mr. Elkins if he intended to stand out against the committee in order to make more difficult the passage of a tariff bill.

Denying that he had joined a movement in antagonism to the committee, Mr. Elkins asserted that he stood with President Taft on all matters pertaining to tariff revision. The chancellor earnestly warned the Socialists against disorderly agitations, saying that if it became necessary a much stricter law would be introduced for their suppression. He then affirmed that the new taxes, which were necessary for the carrying on of the empire, must be partly direct and partly indirect, that persons having property must share the burden in the shape of an inheritance tax, while necessaries and luxuries also must bear a portion of the impost.
